IECA and StudentAid.com Partner to Provide Families

Aid Eligibility and Net Price Comparisons

Sacramento, CA – Dec. 16, 2009 – The Independent Educational Consultants Association (IECA) and college planning and aid advisory service StudentAid.com today announced a partnership that for the first time provides IECA members' clients accurate, personalized comparisons of student aid eligibility and net prices for colleges years before they apply.

StudentAid.com's breakthrough College Cost & Planning Report™ is personalized for each student's academic and financial circumstances and the specific colleges they are interested in attending.

"IECA members will be able to integrate reliable financial information into their evaluation services and help families assess colleges on affordability as well as academic fit," said Craig V. Carroll, founder and chief executive officer of StudentAid.com.

Each report:

- Assesses a student's eligibility for more than $100 billion of student aid
- Evaluates each individual's out-of-pocket costs at more than 6,500 colleges
- Provides detailed comparative data on college choices so students may easily compare colleges

Reports are customized for IECA and available to its members' clients at a special discount.

"We endorse StudentAid.com's innovation because it eliminates financial guesswork and helps families make smart choices about a college education," said IECA Executive Director Mark Sklarow.

StudentAid.com calculations use the latest federal and state student-aid formulas and methodologies. Its algorithms were rigorously tested on 25 million cases and with 28,000 real families.

Each custom report not only assesses personal costs, but also provides specific information about grants and tax credits as well as detailed college profiles and a planning timeline to make researching and choosing affordable colleges easier.

Clients of IECA members may access StudentAid.com's easy online, self-serve method on an IECA-branded Web site, or use an advisor-assisted telephone service.
